PARDO GT52

Cantiere del Pardo has launched its brand-new Pardo GT52. A novelty that is positioned between the Walkaround and the Endurance range, appealing to a segment of owners looking for even more spacious and comfortable volumes than the current walkaround models – but without sacrificing performance. Clean, unmistakable hull lines, with the inverted bow typical of the Pardo Yachts family, accompanied by an exterior layout that emphasises the lounge areas. The hull of the Pardo GT52 is an evolution of Pardo 50's one, with which also shares the Volvo Penta IPS propulsion system (2x650 in the standard version, or 2x700/800 as optional).

The central element of this new 52-footer design is based around the continuity between the interior and exterior spaces, as already seen on board the Endurance 60: stern doors which can be opened completely and the roof in semi-open mode. The innovative concept of the Pardo GT stems from an idea to create a convivial boat that could perfectly connect the interior with the exterior. A complete reorganization of the spaces also offers wider usability of the cockpit, with a dining area and extended sunbathing areas, as well as a more generous and flexible “livability” below deck. The lounge on the main deck is protected by the superstructure and can be completely opened towards the stern, directly connecting the two areas; otherwise, the lounge door and stern windows can be used to separate the salon from the outside by creating an internal area that can be conditioned or heated depending on weather conditions. The aesthetics of the forms is never separated from its marine function.

The interiors of the GT52 are designed to provide an experience surrounded by comfort, and functionality, offering an intelligent internal layout to be shared with guests on board. Indeed, the architecture of the interiors allows the possibility of two different layouts (galley up or galley down) that transforms the perception of space, enhancing the time spent on board especially during long distant cruising.

The GT52 inherits the best of Pardo Yachts innovation in terms of construction quality and technology applied to boating, always keeping in mind the needs of its owners who want to enjoy the sea and the ocean in total safety and autonomy. The hydrodynamics have been recalculated, taking into account the greater weight created by the cabin plan and by the closed superstructure, as well as by the more substantial interior furnishings compared to the Pardo 50.

Cantiere del Pardo presented Pardo GT52 with a special World Première in Saint-Tropez, one of the most iconic and exclusive locations of the Mediterranean area, perfectly in line with the Pardo Yachts style. Three days dedicated to the discovery of the new model where international journalists, dealer network and selected clients had the chance to participate in this amazing event.

Pardo GT52 will be introduced to the US audience during the Fort Lauderdale International Boat Show 2022: an event that can't be missed to appreciate this perfect combination between aesthetic and marine character.
